Mesa Tactical Announces Urbino Tactical Stock and Forend bundle for Benelli M4 in New OD Green Color.

January 17, 2012, Las Vegas, NV – Mesa Tactical, provider of high quality tactical accessories and gear to law enforcement, the military and civilian shooters, has once again teamed with local supplier Freedom Fighter Tactical to bundle their US-made forends with Mesa Tactical’s Urbino Tactical stock for the Benelli M4 semi-automatic shotgun. This new product bundle will allow Benelli M4 owners to customize their shotguns with OD green-colored stock and forend “furniture,” in addition to the black and coyote tan colors that are already available.

“Our June 2011 introduction of coyote tan Urbino Tactical stock and forend bundles was welcomed by Benelli M4 owners,” said Mitch Barrie, President of Mesa Tactical. “But we immediately received calls for OD green stocks and forends as well.”

“This announcement should satisfy our customers and prospects in the near term,” continued Barrie, “Or at least until demand increases for a hot pink combination.”

Injection-molded in glass-filled nylon, the Urbino Tactical stock features a “tactical” 12½ inch length of pull (LoP) for enhanced weapon control, especially with body armor; optional field-adjustable cheek riser to provide improved cheek weld when used with optics; optional Limbsaver® butt pad for greater shooting comfort, especially during long training or certification courses; shock-absorbing rubber grip sleeve to reduce shooter fatigue; and a variety of standard and proprietary sling mounting options.

Urbino Tactical Stock and Forend for Benelli M4 bundles are available immediately. Like the Urbino Tactical stock, Freedom Fighter’s forends are made in the USA and can contribute to the domestic parts count for US Code Title 18 922(r) compliance.

Gear and accessories for law enforcement, military and personal defense.
